Name It Without Shame

Your First 7 Days in the Seeking Room

A short guided starting rhythm for the woman healing from betrayal, heartbreak, or the consequences of rushing ahead of God.

By Rhina Jasmyn

Author of Shortcuts Stole Everything — But Jesus Christ Restored It All

This is not a 7-day fix.
This is the beginning of a rhythm you can return to for the rest of your life.

A Word From Me Before You Begin

I did not write this because I studied other women's pain from a distance. I wrote it because I lived it.

I rushed God's plan around age 30. I created my own Ishmael. I stayed in a marriage marked by repeated betrayal and narcissism for 14 years. My heart was not just broken — it was powdered. Then God began the slow, unglamorous work of rebuilding me one morning at a time.

This free guide is the first step of the same rhythm that rebuilt me. It is taken directly from the opening of The Seeking Room — my 155-page devotional planner. You will not finish healing in seven days. Anyone who promises that is selling you another shortcut.

What you will do is begin. You will name what hurt. You will start guarding the gate of your mind. You will practice coming back to the Word instead of running to people or noise.

Print this if you want. Or keep it on your phone. Do one day at a time. Speak the declarations out loud. Your own ears need to hear your voice agree with God.

— Rhina

How to Use These 7 Days

• Do one day at a time. Do not rush ahead.

• Read the Scripture out loud.

• Sit with the short word from me. Underline what stings — that is usually where God is working.

• Write the reflection. Be honest. Nobody is grading this.

• Pray the prayer, then pray your own.

• Speak the declaration out loud. Every day.

DAY 1 — Name the Loss

Scripture

"The Lord is near to the heartbroken and He saves those who are crushed in spirit." — Psalm 34:18 AMP

"The Lord is close to the brokenhearted; he rescues those whose spirits are crushed." — Psalm 34:18 NLT

A Word From Rhina

Heartbreak doesn't only come from a marriage ending. It comes from the friend who stopped calling. The dream that died quietly. The years you lost. Grief doesn't ask permission. It is okay to mourn. It is normal. But we are not meant to set up camp in it.

Depression is not a personality trait God gave you. What you feel is real — but the voice that tells you to stay there forever is not from Him. Today we name the loss clearly. Then we refuse to make a home in it.

One Original Language Insight

The Hebrew word for "near" in Psalm 34:18 is qarob. It does not mean "somewhere in the area." It is the word for a close relative who has the legal right and duty to redeem you. God is not watching your grief from a distance. He is near with obligation to rescue.

Reflection — Write This

What specifically did you lose? Name it plainly. No softening. No spiritualizing it away. Write the raw truth in a few sentences.

_____

_____

Prayer

Jesus, I stop pretending. I bring You the actual loss, the actual name, the actual date it happened. You are near to the shattered, and I am shattered. Come close as my Redeemer. I refuse to build a home in this grief. I grieve it, and then I hand it to You. In Jesus' name, Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

"I am allowed to grieve. I am not allowed to live there. God is near to me right now, and He is already healing what I am naming today."

DAY 2 — Stop Calling It Your Identity

Scripture

> “Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind.” — Romans 12:2

A Word From Rhina

What have you been calling “depression,” “my new normal,” or “who I am now” that is actually grief looking for an exit? The enemy loves when we turn a season of pain into a permanent label. God never put that label on you.

Today we separate the feeling from the identity. You can feel the weight without making it your name.

Reflection — Write This

What label have you given your pain that God never put on you? Write it down. Then write one true sentence about who you are in Christ instead.

_____

Prayer

> Father, I reject every false name I have given myself in this pain. I am not my heartbreak. I am not my divorce. I am not the years that were stolen. I am Your daughter. Renew my mind. In Jesus’ name, Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

> “This pain is real, but it is not my name. I am being transformed by the renewing of my mind.”

DAY 3 — Guard the Gate

Scripture

“We take captive every thought to make it obedient to Christ.” — 2 Corinthians 10:5

A Word From Rhina

Most women believe one negative word faster than ten compliments. Someone calls you a failure once and it lodges for years. That is not humility. That is a stronghold. The enemy does not need a wide-open door. He only needs one lie repeated and unchallenged.

One Original Language Insight

The Greek word for “take captive” is a military term. It means to lead away at spearpoint as a prisoner of war. You do not politely ask a lie to leave. You march it out.

Reflection — Write This

What three thoughts repeat on a loop in your mind? Write them with no filter. Then mark each one: Truth or Lie.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____

Prayer

In the name of Jesus, I take every tormenting thought captive. I refuse to let lies build a nest in my mind. I demolish every argument raised against the knowledge of God. My mind is sacred ground. Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

“I take every thought captive and make it obedient to Christ. My mind is not a trash can. It is sacred ground.”

DAY 4 — Open Hands (Not Open Wounds)

Scripture

“Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding.” — Proverbs 3:5

A Word From Rhina

I thought I was surrendering for years while still gripping the steering wheel. Real surrender sounds like: “Lord, I didn’t choose this, I don’t like it, but I trust You more than I trust myself.”

Surrender means releasing your will and your timeline — never your safety. Know the difference. God never asked you to stay in something that is destroying you in order to prove your faith.

Reflection — Write This

What are you still gripping that you know God is asking you to release? What has trying to control it cost you?

_____

Prayer

Jesus, I open my hands. I release my timeline and my need to understand why. I stop trying to help You. Where I have called endurance “surrender,” show me the difference. Make my path straight — not short, not easy, but walkable. Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

“Not my will. Not my timing. Not my plan. I open my hands today.”

DAY 5 — You Are Allowed to Remember

Scripture

“I will forgive their wickedness and will remember their sins no more.” — Hebrews 8:12

A Word From Rhina

God never says “I will forget.” He says “I will not remember.” Those are not the same sentence. Remembering is not unforgiveness — it is how you stop walking into the same fire twice. When the memory comes and it does not come with pain, that is the sign of release.

You can forgive a person and still keep the wisdom their behavior taught you. Forgiveness releases the debt. It does not automatically restore access.

Reflection — Write This

Is there a memory you have been trying to force yourself to erase? What wisdom is God allowing you to keep from it?

Prayer

Father, I release the debt. I forgive. And I keep the wisdom. I will not call remembering “unforgiveness.” Heal the pain attached to the memory so that when it comes, it no longer owns me. Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

“I forgive fully. I do not hand back the key. Remembering is not unforgiveness — it is wisdom.”

DAY 6 — Levels of Access

Scripture

“Above all else, guard your heart, for everything you do flows from it.” — Proverbs 4:23

A Word From Rhina

Jesus loved everyone. He did not tell everyone everything. He taught the crowds. He sent out seventy. He chose twelve. He drew three closer. And only one leaned on His chest. Same love. Different levels of access.

You do not give level-ten access to a person who is giving you level-one responsibility. When you discover they are at a one, your job is not to demand they climb. Your assignment is to lower your access to match the level they are actually giving — out of wisdom, not revenge.

Reflection — Write This

Who currently has more access to your heart than they have shown responsibility for? What is one boundary sentence you can say that governs you (not them)?

_____

Prayer

Father, teach me to govern myself instead of managing everyone else. Show me who I have let too close. I will not confuse honor with unlimited access. Give me courage to set the fence. Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

“I govern myself. I do not control others. Access is earned by responsibility. The fence was always love.”

DAY 7 — This Is Only the Beginning

Scripture

> “But seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well.” — Matthew 6:33

A Word From Rhina

You just spent seven days practicing a rhythm: name it, refuse the false identity, guard the gate, open your hands, keep the wisdom, and set levels of access. This is not a finish line. This is the first lap.

The full Seeking Room contains ten complete sections, Hebrew and Greek word studies throughout, full journal space, twelve months of undated calendars, habit trackers, and the deeper work on boundaries, vision, and the blessing that is already yours. It is the same rhythm — expanded so you can keep returning for as long as you need.

Reflection — Write This

What is one thing you are taking with you from these seven days? What is one area where you know you need to go deeper?

Prayer

> Jesus, thank You for meeting me in these seven days. I am not who I was when I started. I choose to keep seeking You first. Show me the next step. I am ready to go deeper. Amen.

Speak This Out Loud

“This is not the end of my seeking. This is the habit I carry forward. I seek God first.”

Your Next Step

These seven days were the beginning of the rhythm — not the whole thing.

If you are ready to stop praying alone and actually sit with God — to journal it, dig into the original languages, build the full boundary system, and keep returning for months — the full planner is ready for you.
